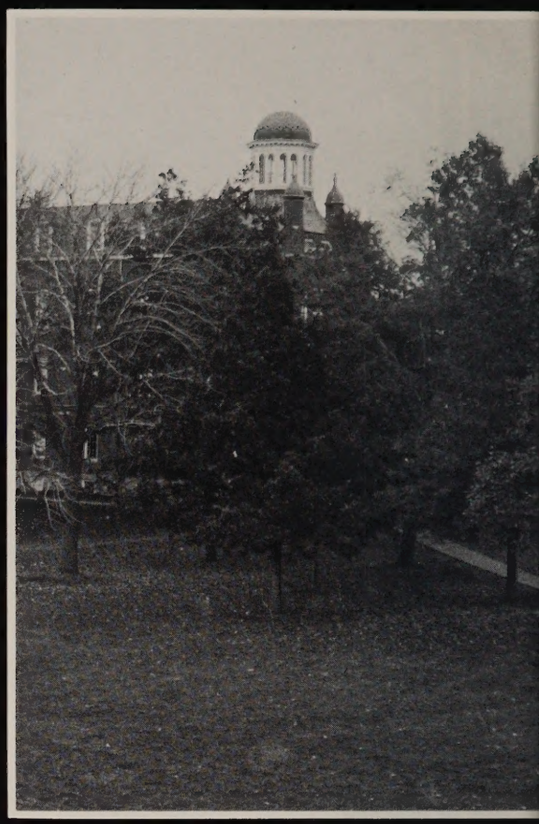
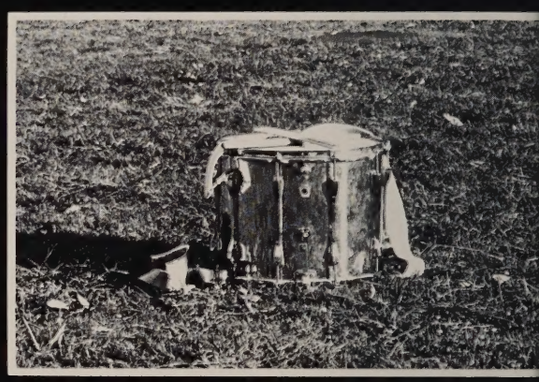
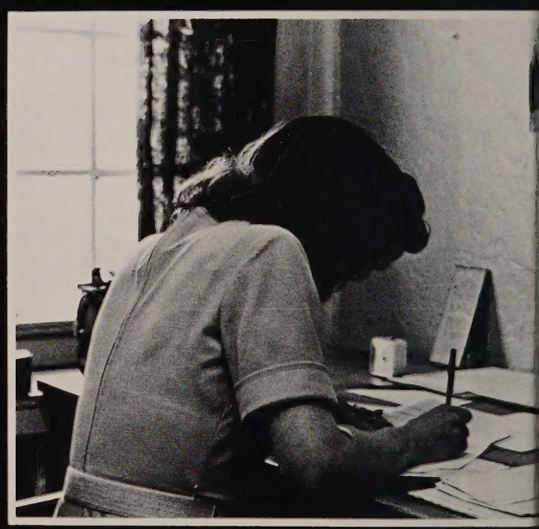
High on the mountain

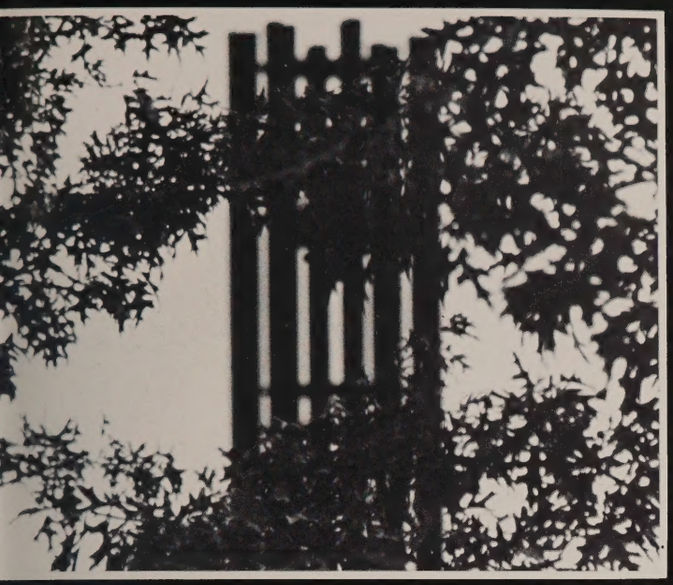
The clouds down below

I'm feeling so strong and alive









From this rocky perch

I'll continue to search

For the wind

And the snow

And the sky

And where do you go

When you get to the end of your dream?

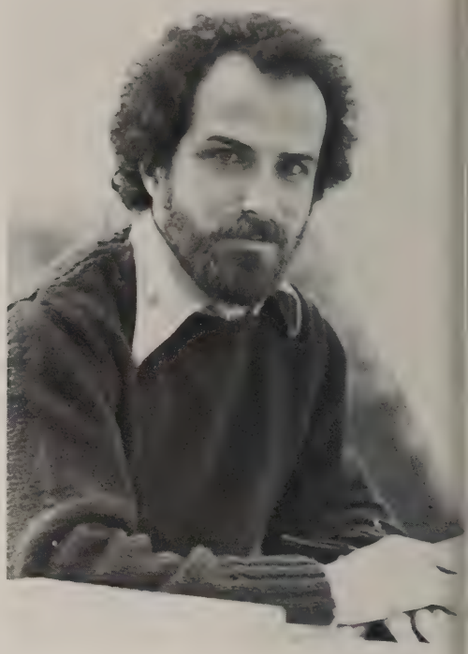
Art, Speech, and Drama

The Art department endeavors to show the student how the visual arts are related to the quality of our lives. Both the making of our own art and the understanding of art made by others are among the most human activities on which people focus their efforts and powers of invention. We try to communicate the potential of the visual arts as a means, at least for many of us, to deal with experience by questioning our existence and by expressing our conclusions to others. Mr. Collins and I, with the aid of Mr. Wolkan and Mr. DiSabato, are collectively engaged in the pursuit of the above. We think it is a noble thing to do.

Mr. James A. Hopper
Department Chairman
Associate Professor of Art



Mr. Joel R. Collins
Assistant Professor of Art

The Department of Speech and Drama aims to assist all students to improve their abilities in the art of communication and provide opportunities for artistic experience through the theatre and forensic programs.

Music

Music has long been an integral factor in the life of Mount Union College. The Department of Music recognizes two principal responsibilities; first, to give all College students the widest possible opportunity for musical participation; second, to give the best possible professional training to students who expect to make music their life work. The faculty has been carefully chosen with these principles in mind.

Timothy Angeloni directs the jazz ensemble.

Dan Detchon teaches private trombone and baritone.

Dr. Lewis Gordon, besides directing the choral groups, teaches private voice, conducting, and basic musicianship.

Diane Hartong teaches private piano and keyboard literature.

Dorothy Henschen teaches harp.

Carl Kandel directs the bands, the brass choirs, and teaches horn, tuba, conducting, and music literature.

Stephen Lewark teaches private piano and theory.

Steven Malycke teaches private woodwinds, instrumental methods, and counterpoint.

Randy Orsak teaches private violin and viola.

Lewis Phelps teaches music methods, literature, basic musicianship, and private voice.

Carole Roberdeau teaches private percussion and assists with the bands.

Rachel Shaffer teaches voice and music education.

Barbara A. Smith teaches bassoon.

Peter Synnestvedt directs the orchestra, the string ensembles, and teaches private cello and string bass, music history and literature.

Rebecca Thomas serves as music librarian.

David Wetmore teaches private trumpet.

Carol Wunderle teaches private organ.

Asst. Professor of Music

Mr. Peter N. Synnestvedt

Education

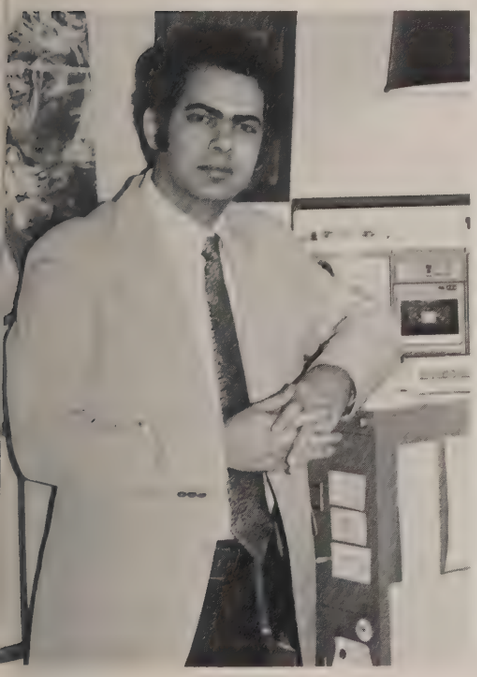
Dr. Chester E. Bartram
Department Chairman
Professor of Education

Mr. Ralph Daily
Associate Professor of Education

The Education Department is concerned that the person preparing to teach has a strong liberal arts background for personal enhancement and effective living in society. Our second concern is that the individual is well prepared academically and professionally for teaching.

Approved by the Department of Education of the State of Ohio, Mount Union prepares teachers at the kindergarten-primary, elementary, and secondary levels and in the special areas of language, music, and physical education (grades kindergarten-12). By taking four extra courses, students who complete one of the above mentioned programs may have their certificates validated to teach children with learning and/or behavior disorders.

Faculty members in the department are Chester E. Bartram, Ralph Daily, Paul Shaker, and Georgia Sprinkle. Jim Walton teaches in both the Education and English Departments, while Angela Zumbar teaches in both the Education and Language Departments.



Dr. Paul Shaker
Assistant Professor of Education

Miss Georgia M. Sprinkle
Assistant Professor of Education

Languages

There is a monastery within the soul of me where my cloistered thoughts go in search of wings many cling like a torpid novice forever to the safety of silence many find quick wings and quicker still are crushed in blind eagerness for flight but some — ah some emerge like flaming meteors embracing the night.
And before me looms a wall
wide and long. . . . and tall . . .
someone shouts "hello, come in"
. . . I try the door and find it locked I do not have the key. No one took it from me . . . perhaps
. . . I never really had it . . .
perhaps . . . I held a dream in my hand . . .
Life is a musical powder box gift wrapped in gold and verdant green tied with river ribbon and placed beneath the great moon
candle; a gift for those who find it.
An angry finger holds strong on the space bar of my heart. I am searching the winds for a song.
The skies laugh.
The melody haunts me, and drives me into the storm searching the winds for the key to loose my heart song from its bondage and free my thoughts.
I cannot hold this great love inside
my little heart.

English

The members of the English Department strive to educate students in written and oral expression, linguistics, the cultural significance of literature, and literary history. We prepare majors for secondary teaching, graduate study, and business careers, and we attempt to provide programs which will be of maximum value to all Mount Union students, non-majors alike. The eight members of the English faculty have varied backgrounds and interests. Lyle Crist is our inveterate punster, public speaker, and creative writer. Gloria Malone is our specialist in Children's Literature and English as a second language. Mary Ellen Nurmi is our world traveller and Chaucerian. David Ragosin's main loves are the contemporary theatre and non-traditional study. Earl Russell worries a lot and his avocations are music and constructing harpsichords. Helen Saffell is our authority on linguistics, grammar, and teaching methods. James Walton, tennis and track star (ex?), teaches ably in both English and Education. Paul Chapman, resident Victorian, is aging rapidly trying to keep track of this diverse brood.

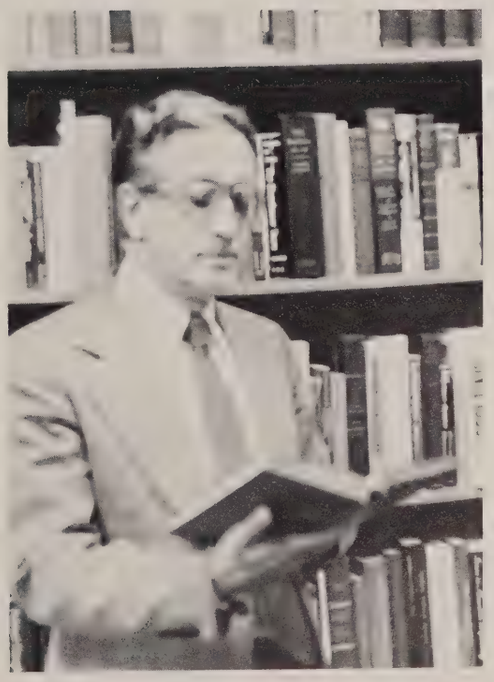
History - Political Science

Dr. John E. Saffell
Department Chairman
Professor of History

Dr. Robert E. Bader
Professor of History

Mr. Richard L. Doyle
Associate Professor of History



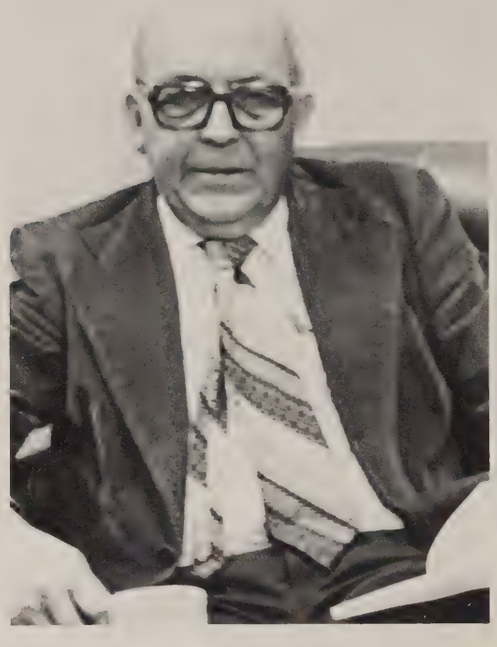
Dr. George L. Montagno
Professor of History & Dir. of Non-Western Studies

The Department of History and Political Science attempts to help students achieve an awareness and appreciation of their heritage as well as a knowledge of the structure of political institutions and an understanding of the political process.

Department members include long-timer Dr. Bader, Civil War specialist and lover of good cars; Dr. Doyle, young, vigorous, somewhat over-weight, and practitioner of historical quantification; Dr. Montagno, Director of Non-Western studies, world traveler, and the force behind the present emphasis at Mount on international education; Dr. Oppermann, medievalist, lover of knowledge for its own sake, defender and practitioner of precise expression; Dr. Saffell, present chairman, who thinks students are on the right track if they appreciate Edmund Burke and read the Wall Street Journal; and Dr. Tune political scientist, Ph.D. Univ. of Michigan, member of Phi Beta Kappa, and affectionately known as "Curly."

Psychology

Psychology at Mount is both a crossroads and a gathering place for many students. Some touch base with one course (Psych 100) and move on. Some come back two or three times and focus more closely on target topics, usually as a continued elective. Some come to us with clearcut goals in other areas, see us a viable means to these ends, and carry away however we can be helpful. Our majors look upon psychology as an end in itself. Those interested in personality, adult adjustment, abnormal, and counseling reach out to Dr. Kramer, who also doubles as our Campus Counselor for students who seek a setting for private moments of personal growth. Those inclined toward experimental, physiological, learning, and perception come to Dr. Clayson, who also doubles as chief guide for senior projects and for his own published research. Those reaching into a multidisciplinary approach relate to Dr. Zellweger, who doubles his path along a study of creativity and a study of all sign processes and all symbol systems.



Dr. George H. Tune

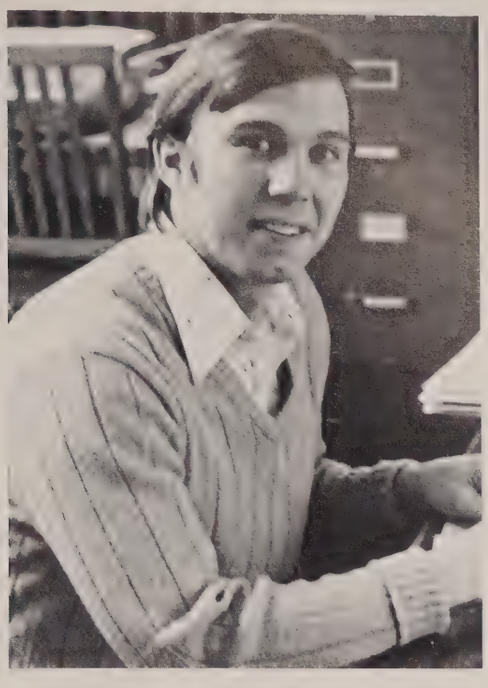
Campus Counseling Psychologist



Dr. Jeffery L. Hahn
Department Chairman
Instructor in Sociology

Dr. Kathleen Piker King
Asst. Professor of Sociology

Dr. Roy N. Martin
Asst. Professor of Sociology

The Department of Sociology offers majors in Sociology and Social Services. The department attempts to help the student better understand the complex social world by facilitating creative and critical thinking skills. Sociology majors may concentrate in the areas of deviance, family, social organization or another combination of courses of their choice. Most sociology majors plan for careers in research oriented positions, some of which may be in social service agencies. Social Service majors enroll in core social service courses with a concentration in an area of interest. All of our departmental majors are strongly encouraged to consider graduate training.

The Sociology Department consists of three full-time and one part-time instructors. Dr. Hahn, a 1973 Mount graduate, received his Ph.D. and M.A. from Kent State University. His areas of specialization are deviant behavior and the sociology of law. Dr. King received her Ph.D. and M.A. degrees from Kent State University. Her B.S. degree is from Indiana State University and her specializations include deviant behavior and social organization. Dr. Martin received his B.A. from the University of Cincinnati, his M.Div. from Lexington Theological Seminary, and his Ph.D. from Drew University. Dr. Martin's specializations are the sociology of religion, anthropology, statistics, research design, and computer. Ms. Downing, our part-time social services instructor, received her M.A. in Sociology from Kent State University and has served in various casework and administrative positions at the Summit County Welfare Department for the last fourteen years.

Philosophy - Religion

The members of the Department of Religion and Philosophy stress both the historical and the personal dimensions of human experience. In our historical studies we investigate as objectively as we can the past of the biblical and Judeo-Christian faith, and of non-Christian religions and philosophies as well. Also, we hope to challenge our students to a personal response to these past ways of thinking and acting. And to make faith and philosophy more relevant we add, for contemporary emphasis, the forms of thought and practice open to us today. Professors Buckey, Gifford, Newell, Thomas, and Vesey are all scholars in the history of religion and philosophy; and each is positively committed to the importance of an individuals personal religious and spiritual growth.

Business Administration - Economics - Accounting

The Department of Economics, Accounting and Business Administration assists the student in developing general and specific skills in the understanding of human behavior and the impact of social, political, financial, and economic forces on the decision making processes within business and government. Concurrently, the student is prepared for professional responsibility in a variety of careers in the fields of business, accounting and economics as well as the pursuit of advanced degrees. The department faculty includes seven full-time and six part-time members. Over one-half the faculty members have had extensive business experience.

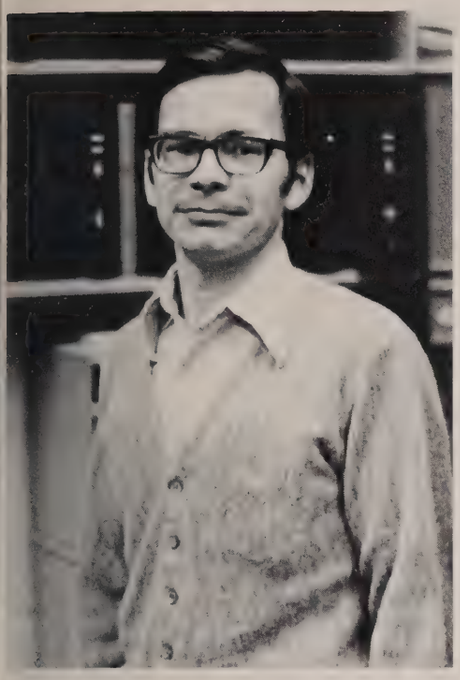
Math - Physics - Astronomy - Computer Science

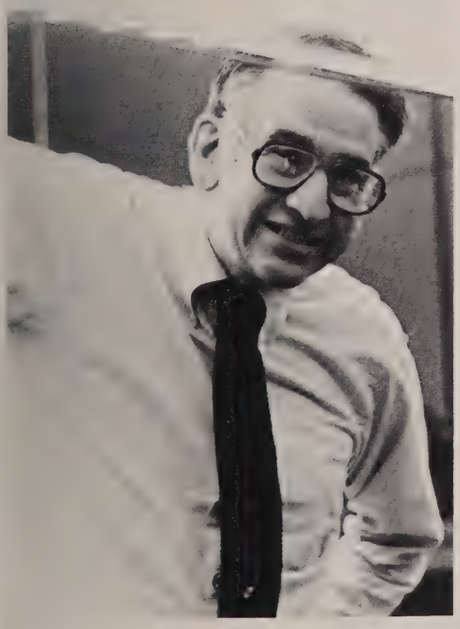


Dr. John F. Kirchmeyer
Asst. Professor of Mathematics

Dr. David H. Lubbers
Asst. Professor of Mathematics

There are three full-time faculty members in the Department of Mathematics, Dr. John Kirchmeyer, Dr. David Lubbers and Dr. William Markley. All three enjoy teaching and encourage students to apply logical reasoning to solving problems and making decisions. They hope that their students can share in the thrill and excitement of mathematics.

Dr. Kirchmeyer's special interests in mathematics are in algebra and numerical methods. He is chairman of the Religious Life Committee and the faculty advisor for Little Flock. Other interests include music and water sports. Dr. Lubbers' interest in mathematics is in statistics and applied analysis. He is active in intramural sports and enjoys playing bridge and reading. Dr. Markley's special interest in mathematics is in analysis. When he joined the Mount Union faculty there were only two faculty members teaching mathematics; consequently he has taught geometry, statistics and numerical analysis as well as calculus. His other interests include sports and travel.



Dr. James P. Rodman
Department Chairman
Professor of Physics

Dr. William A. Sloan
Assoc. Professor of Physics & Dir. of Computer Center

Jim Rodman and Bill Sloan, who worked together at Yale's Astronomy Dept., run these areas with plenty of help from part-timers Sam Shimp (Chief of Quality Control at Crane-Allianceware), John Kirchmeyer (also a Math Prof.), Faye Hollaway (also a Chemistry Prof.), and Kathy Sloan (a Physics/Astronomy Major while at Mount and Bill's wife). Jim, Sam, Faye, and Kathy are Mount Union graduates, giving the Department lots of continuity. Computing is perhaps the fastest growing area at Mount, and we also are in charge of the pre- and coop-Engineering programs. We have two observatories and lots of equipment (thanks in part to Ohio war-surplus programs), and the engineering responsibility for WRMU-FM plus occasional lecture demonstrations on explosions ensure a bang-up time for all.

Biology

Within the halls of Lamborn one finds the Biology Department. Amid the bottles of bugs, the smell of chemicals, the sharks and cats and green plants, four faculty members strive to bring biology to the student. Dr. Epp, a whiz at morphogenesis and histology, spends his idle hours with hydra and axolotla. The mysteries of genetics belong to Dr. Blount. Fruit flies, mutator genes and evolution are his interests. Dr. Rowland, newest member in the department, enjoys the wonders of antigens, antibodies and parasites. The plant kingdom and nematodes are the area of interest of Dr. Brueske.

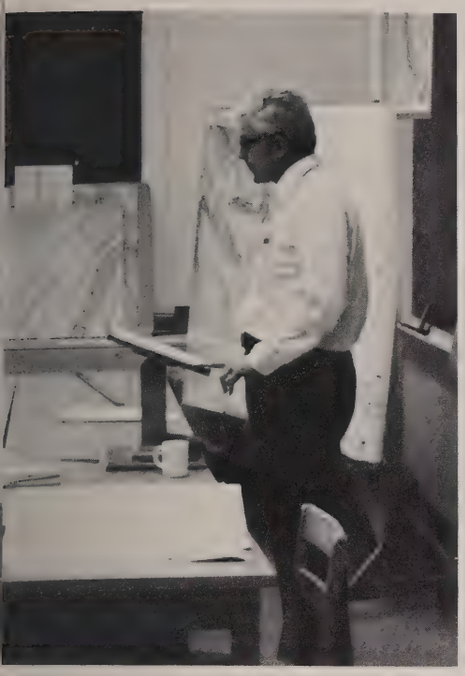
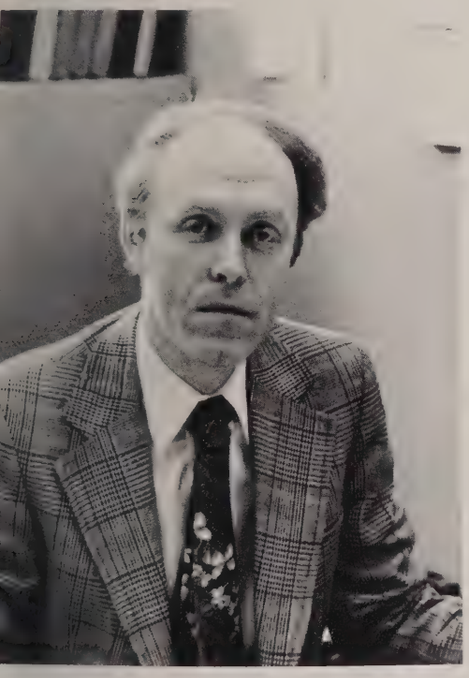
Geology - Chemistry



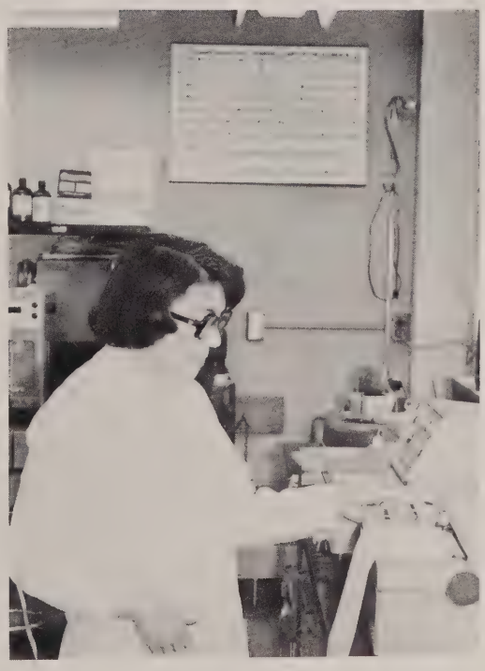
Dr. Robert G. Wiese Jr.
Department Chairman
Professor of Geology & Dir. of X-ray Lab.

Dr. Arthur R. Murdoch
Department Chairman
Professor of Chemistry

Geology is the study of the earth — the solid crust, the internal and external processes that work to modify the surface on which we exist. Geology includes investigations related to the evolution of the continents and oceans as we now know them and the evolution of life. Such studies involve both field observations and laboratory work, which enhance our understanding of natural processes and their impact upon our civilization.



Dr. Truman D. Turnquist
Professor of Chemistry



Faye Hollaway
Asst. Professor of Chemistry

The Chemistry Department operates on the philosophy that science is a dynamic process and an art. The field of chemistry is at once a structured system of knowledge and investigation in formative stages. New knowledge is continually being modified and crystallized or, when appropriate, totally replaced. As a result of this dynamic, chemistry is exciting and challenging. But as it pervades so much of life from medicine and environment to synthetics, even the clothes we wear, it is also an eminently practical field.

The department consists of a staff of three. Dr. Arthur Murdoch is the head of the department. His specialty area is Organic Chemistry. His interests include camping and outdoor activities, especially water sports in the summer.

Dr. Truman Turnquist specializes in Analytical Chemistry and teaches courses in Physical Chemistry. When school is not in session he spends part of his time working at Babcock-Wilcox Research. His outside interest is athletics.

Mrs. Faye Hollaway is our Inorganic specialist. She also supervises the instrumentation labs. This year she is on sabbatical performing research in pursuit of her doctorate. She comes from a suburban setting and enjoys raising and training horses.

Physical Education

The Department of Physical Education sponsors a full program of instructional classes, intramural sports, intercollegiate athletics, and recreational activities with the objectives of providing each student the opportunity to develop optimum interest and pleasures from properly conducted play, to learn participation skills in carry-over sports, to acquire desirable character traits, and to improve neuromuscular skills for optimum efficiency in movement activities.

In Memoriam

Arthur L. Lindstrom

Sorrow is hard to bear, and doubt is slow to clear,
  Each sufferer says his say, his scheme of the weal
    and woe:
But God has a few of us whom he whispers in the ear;
  The rest may reason and welcome: 'tis we musicians know.

Give me the keys. I feel for the common chord again,
  Sliding by semitones till I sink to the minor, — yes,
And I blunt it into a ninth, and I stand on alien ground,
  Surveyng awhile the heights I rolled from into the deep;
Which, hark, I have dared and done, for my resting-place is found,
  The C Major of this life: so, now I will try to sleep.

Black History Week

The month of February has been nationally proclaimed, Black History Month. The Black Student's Union presented their annual Black History Week during February 8th through the 12th. It is our purpose to commemorate past achievements and to perpetuate future goals of Black Americans. The theme for the week was "Muranza", a swahilli word meaning "Enlightenment." The highlight of the week was the appearance of Dr. Benjamin Hooks, Executive Director of the NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People), one of the nation's largest and oldest civil rights organization in America. Dr. Hooks, Tennessee's first black criminal judge and past President of the Federal Communication Commission, addressed his audience in Rodman Playhouse Theater for Wednesday's Convocation. He encouraged all American citizens to take full participation in our democracy to continue our struggle forward. He said, "The nation's leadership needs to sound the trumpet to prepare for the struggle ahead."

We traditionally begin our Black History Week with a Sunday program designed to show the importance religion has made in our lives. This year's program featured: Minister Earl Thomas from Fellowship Chapel of Akron, Ohio with Akron's Community Workshop Choirs and the Voices of Community Choir of Youngstown, Ohio. Monday night entitled "Open Forum" consisted of discussions with Black Student's Union alumni. Tuesday was for dancing, whether it is disco or ballet, is starting a growing practice of fine black art.

The week culminated Thursday evening with a musical concert, featuring the Bel-Aires of Alliance and the Inspirational Choirs of Massillon, Ohio.

Our daily activities included "Black Moments in History", aired during meal hours to honor the numerous forgotten achievements of Blacks in art, science and technology. A student art display featuring artists Irene Motiga, Anthony Rogers, Sandy Holly and community artists Sheila Wright was located in the Music Lounge.

Improvement played a key role in the development of the 1980 Mount Union College Football team. After dropping to a 1-3 record, the Purple Raiders won four of their next five contests, closing their season with a 5-4 mark.

After losing 22 players to graduation, including three key offensive performers, the 1980 squad was forced to abandon the wide-open offense used in 1979. The team used a basic fundamental attack and met with continued improvement as the season progressed. The Purple Raiders' offensive unit moved the ball 4.2 yards per play and 301.0 per game.

The squad finished with a 4-1 mark in the OAC Red Division, its only loss suffered to Baldwin-Wallace.

Seniors Tom Love and Paul Roniger were honored as the team's MVP's. Love was the defensive MVP and Roniger was the offensive MVP.

Best wishes on your new path class of 81'

The Alumni Association

"You must always keep in mind that a path is only a path; if you feel you must not follow it, you must not stay with it under any circumstances . . . any path is only a path, there is no affront to yourself or others in dropping it if that is what your path head tells you to do. But your desision to keep on the path or to leave it must be free of fear or ambition. I warn you! Look at every path closely and deliberately. Try it as many times as you think necessary. Then ask yourself, and you alone, one question . . It is this . . Does this path have a heart? all paths are the same; they lead nowhere. They are paths going through the brush, or into the brush. Does this path have a heart is the questions. If it does then the path is good; if it doesn't, it is of no use. Both paths lead nowhere, but one has heart and the other doesn't. One makes for a joyful journey; as long as you follow it you will be one with it. The other will make you curse your life. One makes you strong, the other weakens you."

Well, you have just finished perusing the 1981 Unonian. We sincerely hope you have enjoyed it and that the book reminds you of all the year's previous events.

As in all previous years, it has been extremely difficult to choose individual pictures to portray an entire year of events. This year has been no exception. But through the talents of our photographers, it was even more difficult. We would like to express our deepest gratitude to Kathy Klingerman, Craig Eppler, Julie Floss, Joy Mueller and the Dynamo staff photographers for the wonderful job they accomplished.

We would also like to thank Sally Moore for her long hours spent in completing the artwork for the book.

We would also like to thank Todd Whetstone, our business manager, for keeping our funds together and keeping us out of debt.

We would also like to thank our staff: Deb Allen, Pat Burns, Jeni Carr, Jim Eberhart, Annette Gasparik, Yallah Gault, Alison Greene, Marcia Holt, Ed Kolesar, Ken Kolke, Helen Lewis, Karen McLaughlin, Jane Marshburn, Dawn Miller, Becky Mowrey, Angie Neal, Patti Racine, Laurie Swaldo, Liz Ullman and Beth Wiemers for pulling through for us and working overtime to meet the deadlines. It was tense a number of times but through their valiant efforts and a lot of late nights the book was published.

We would also like to express our gratitude to Dr. James Walton, our advisor, for standing behind us 100% at all times; Jack Deyton, our Josten's representative, for aiding in our ideas; Plajer and Cross Studios for taking some very important and irreplacable photos; and Liz Mason from the Public Information Office for all her help.

Throughout the year, we have found times when it was impossible to work together and that we had to get away from the book, deadlines and from each other. For this reason, we would like to thank all our friends who pushed us through these very trying times.

The poem in the introductory section entitled "Nether Lands," words and music by Daniel Fogelberg (Copyright 1977 Hickory Grove Music) was reproduced through copyright permission from Front Line Management Company, Inc.

Thanks again for everyone's support in the publication of the 1980 Unonian. Best of luck to the editors and staff of the 1982 Unonian.

Sincerely,

Dina M. Maurer
Shawn K. Foster
